

The Story of Shohag in Bangladesh.

My mother died when I was very young.

I was thrown out of the house and lived on the streets.

I felt very lonely.

I lived in an orphanage for a while.

When L'Arche community opened in Mymensingh, I moved there with my friend Riko.

I now have many friends who live with me.

I don't feel lonely anymore.

We support each other and work together.

I like helping others.

I like learning languages, singing and making art.

It is important to express yourself and be creative.

In many communities, L'Arche members of different religions live together.

I am a Muslim and my faith is very important to me.

I feel good and included when I am with my friends.
